* Clean and delete AutoPlay items * Easy to understand and use * No configuration settingsQ: Object of an abstract class can't extend only one abstract class in java I am getting a "Cannot extend abstract class" error when I write the code below. I want to keep the base class as an abstract class, so I can inherit it. Why can't the subclass extend only one abstract class? abstract class Base { Base(){ System.out.println("Creating object of Base class..."); } abstract void print(); } class Sub extends Base{ Sub(){ System.out.println("Creating object of Sub class..."); } void print(){ System.out.println("Printing...");

} } class Main{ public static void main(String []args){ Base base = new Sub(); //ERROR } } EDIT: The program will not compile even if I change the two classes like this: abstract class Sub extends Base { Sub() { System.out.println("Creating object of Sub class..."); } } class Sub extends Base { Sub() { System.out.println("Creating object of Sub class..."); } } And I will still get "abstract method print() cannot be resolved" A: I believe this is what you need:

```java
abstract class Base {
    Base(){
        System.out.println("Creating object of Base class...");
    abstract void print();
class Sub extends Base {
    Sub(){
        System.out.println("Creating object of Sub class...");
    @Override
    void print(){
        System.out.println("Printing...");
class Main

CleanHandlers is a lightweight application whose sole purpose is to remove unwanted AutoPlay items, which are launched each time the system detects newly discovered removable media and devices. The AutoPlay feature displays appropriate applications for helping you run the current programs or files. Since this is a portable program, it is important to mention that it doesn't leave any traces in the Windows Registry. You can copy it on any USB flash drive or other devices, and take it with you whenever you need to remove the AutoPlay option on the fly. CleanHandlers sports a clean and simple interface that give uses the possibility to view the AutoPlay items installed on the system.

What's more, you can delete the selected items, refresh the list, as well as scan and fix invalid entries. Since there aren't any configuration settings, even rookies can master the entire process with minimum effort. During our testing we have noticed that the program carries out a task quickly and without errors throughout the entire process. It doesn't eat up a lot of CPU and memory, so it doesn't hamper system performance. All things considered, CleanHandlers offers a simple software solution when it comes to deleting AutoPlay items. It can be easily installed by all types of users, regardless of their experience level. CleanHandlers Screenshot: Removes unwanted audio/video files from the desktop and Internet application which serves to remove the unwanted AutoPlay items that are launched each time the system detects newly discovered removable media and devices. CleanHandlers is smart. You don't need to open the program and modify any of your system settings. It does all the dirty work for you. It's very simple and incredibly easy to use. You can start by creating a list of items that you wish to remove. After that, it's time to click the button and start scanning! Once it's done scanning, the list is refreshed automatically so you can easily find the items that you want to remove. You can manually select the items to be removed. CleanHandlers has no windows that can slow down the system, nor does it have any types of spyware that can harm your computer. And what's even better is that you do not need to reinstall CleanHandlers on your machine once you've completed scanning. Because it saves the list of items that you want to delete, the process is quick and will not take up any computer resources.

CleanHandlers is a lightweight portable
